List of Future Features

- Ability for therapists to control length of activity (number of bubbles that need to be popped, number of fish that need to be caught, etc.)
- Ability for therapists to control content of activity (sounds, visuals, topic, etc.) to match the interests of students
- Including audio feedback for children during activities (children are very attuned to sounds after their cochlear implants)
- List of profiles for individual students that saves progress
- Ability to add new activities to keep content fresh and engaging
- Ability to add notes about sessions and individual tasks
- Animation that shows child what they should do physically, child then imitates