CREATIVE RESISTANCE WORKSHOP

This workshop is part of an ongoing series designed to bring artists working with technology together in small groups to talk through notions of creative resistance and critical art practice: what it means, how they practice it, what it does well, and where it might fall short of bringing about structural change.

Together, we will discuss and evaluate the ups and downs of the strategies and technologies we use, and work to draft a manifesto detailing the things that are important to us, the commitments we are willing to make in our practices, and the changes we'd like to see in the tech art landscape.

This version of the workshop is only open to the ITP/IMA community. Participation will be capped at 12 people in order to preserve intimacy within the session.
